Overview

Cameron Coyle is an associate attorney with English, Lucas, Priest & Owsley (ELPO Law) who maintains a broad and dynamic civil litigation practice, with a particular focus on personal injury matters. Known for his versatile legal acumen, Cameron capably represents both plaintiffs and defendants across a wide spectrum of general civil litigation cases, including business and contract disputes, collections and creditors' rights, boundary disputes, employment-related issues, and family law matters.

Cameron, who was admitted to the Kentucky Bar in 2024, has developed a diverse litigation practice and has extensive experience handling all phases of a case—from pre-suit negotiations and strategic case evaluation to active courtroom representation. He has successfully argued and won motions to dismiss, conducted critical depositions, navigated complex mediation proceedings, and gained valuable trial experience in family law custody cases.

Beyond his prowess in the courtroom, Cameron serves as a trusted advisor to individuals and businesses alike. He routinely drafts and analyzes employment agreements, advises clients on the practical and legal implications of contractual terms, prepares comprehensive estate planning documents, and counsels businesses on foundational operational and contractual matters. Whether navigating a complex business dispute or advocating for a client in a personal injury matter, Cameron is committed to providing clear, strategic guidance at every stage of the legal process to achieve the best client outcome.

A 2020 graduate from Western Kentucky University, Cameron earned his Juris Doctor from the University of Kentucky J. David Rosenberg College of Law in 2024. Outside of his legal practice, Cameron enjoys watching sports, playing golf, and reading. He and his wife reside in Bowling Green.
